Subject: State Certification That Basic Service Rates In Rural, High-Cost Areas Served
 By Non-Rural Carriers Are Reasonably Comparable To The National Urban Rate Benchmark.

Dear Ms. Majcher:

This letter is sent as certification that rural rates for services provided by the non-rural carriers in Tennessee are reasonably comparable to the nationwide benchmark urban rate.

In October 2003, the Federal Communications Commission modified the high-cost universal service support mechanism for non-rural carriers.¹ One of the modifications was that the certification process was expanded by requiring each state to provide information to the Commission regarding the comparability of the rates in rural areas served by non-rural carriers within the state to urban rates nationwide. To ensure comparability of the rural rates, the Commission established a “safe harbor” benchmark national urban rate² and determined that other relevant factors, such as poor service quality or limited calling areas, should also be considered.³

Pursuant to the Commission’s direction, the Tennessee Regulatory Authority (“Authority”) has reviewed the residential rates charged by the non-rural carrier in rural areas of Tennessee and found them to be below the “safe harbor” benchmark established by the Commission. In addition, the Authority has considered other relevant factors of service quality and the calling scopes associated with rates and determined that the rate comparability is not limited by these factors.

² Id., ¶ 81.

³ Id., ¶ 90.

Accordingly, the Tennessee Regulatory Authority certifies that non-rural carrier rates for residential service in Tennessee's rural areas are reasonably comparable to the national urban rate benchmark.

This filing is made pursuant to CC Docket 96-45.
