4. Provide all prepared cost estimates related to billing system modifications which would provide the ability to supply customers with increased information concerning the components of their bill.

Response: The Company has not prepared any specific cost estimates related to such billing system modifications. The Company's billing system, S2K, is a computer system that was developed in-house over the past 25+ years. It is run on an IBM Mainframe IT platform and coded COBOL. S2K renders customer bills based on actual usage and a total per-therm billing rate. Changes to the basic billing structure, such as separating components of the billing rate as separate billing line items, can only be accommodated through code changes. Generally, such coding changes are cumbersome and costly due to the system's older original design and complex architecture.

7. Identify the criteria the Company believes should be used by regulators in the evaluation of whether capital project costs are prudent. For each identified criterion, provide an explanation of how it would be applied to the evaluation of IMR projects.

Response: We can see no reason why the prudence evaluation for costs associated with IMR-eligible capital projects should be materially different than that which the Commission uses to evaluate capital costs included in Company's approved rate base in general rate case proceedings. Regulatory prudence is generally based upon reasoned decision-making based on facts and circumstances known at the time, not upon hindsight analysis.

10. Refer to the March 2019 Duke Energy Update slides contained in the Investors section of the Duke Energy website. Footnote 4 within slide 68 of 78 indicates that the reported Piedmont Net Income for 2018 excludes $5 Million of income related to Investments in Gas Transmission Infrastructure. Indicate whether Revenue/Income associated with Piedmont's Tennessee Transmission system is reflected in the surveillance reports provided to the Commission. If Transmission revenue or margins associated with Transmission investment are not included within earnings reports submitted to the Commission, provide the justification supporting the exclusion.

Response: The $5 million referenced in the footnote of the slide is not related to Piedmont's LDC gas operations. Accordingly, that $5 million of income is not represented within Piedmont's surveillance reporting to the Commission. All income associated with Piedmont's LDC operations in Tennessee, which includes the entirety of Piedmont's gas assets in Tennessee is reflected in Piedmont's surveillance reporting to the Commission.

11. Provide a comprehensive narrative explaining when in the plant accounting process retirements are recorded. This response should clearly state whether retirements are recorded when construction is recorded within FERC account 106 (Completed Construction Not Classified) or within FERC account 101 — Plant in Service.

Response: All plant retirements are recorded in FERC Account 101 – Plant in Service. When assets are removed from service and replaced, the retirement of the asset being removed is performed at the time the new replacement is placed into service (i.e. when the new replacement is recorded to FERC Account 106 – Completed Construction Not Classified). For assets removed from service and not replaced, the retirement is recorded in the month the asset is no longer used in utility operations.

Certain Assets within General Plant are automatically retired when they reach their expected service life (as defined by a depreciation study). This applies to assets recorded within the following FERC Utility Accounts: 391 – Office Furniture and Equipment, 393 – Stores Equipment, 394 – Tools, Shop, and Garage Equipment, 395 – Laboratory Equipment, 397 – Communication Equipment, 398 – Miscellaneous Equipment. A manual review is performed annually to identify assets that need to be retired.

12. Provide a roll-out schedule describing how the OASIS asset has been implemented into use over time for each Oasis component. Within this break-down of implementation, provide a detailed discussion of how the items in each phase relate to FERC part 192, subparts O and P.

Response: Detailed infrastructure asset information such as description of assets, timing of and reason for asset replacement resides within ARM (Asset Record Management), one of the most recent applications developed under the OASIS projects. Much of the intent for Subparts O and P deals with development and maintenance of asset records.

This last phase of OASIS was deployed starting in April of 2017 and ending in November of 2017. System integrity was the first asset to be managed within ARM and it was deployed first in all of Piedmont's service territories. Between April and November of 2017 the following assets were deployed within ARM: valve inspection, measurement and regulation inspection, leak grading and repair, emergency response, 811 locates, leak survey, and repair and replacement of system infrastructure.

Subparts O and P speak to record retention, cycle duration of inspections, risk and risk prioritization, etc. The data to make informed decisions on these items comes primarily from the applications develop under the OASIS projects. One example is the grading, monitoring and eventual repair of a leak and identification of the cause of the leak so that risk trending can be performed.

14. Provide a comprehensive analysis of Piedmont's rationale for including OASIS costs in IMR rates before the system was used and useful.

Response: The computation of rate base for the IMR mechanism, consistent with the approved settlement between Piedmont and the Consumer Advocate in Docket No. 13-00118, provides for the inclusion of CWIP in rate base. Note that CWIP is also included in the computation of rate base in the Company's general rate case proceedings in Tennessee.

17. Provide a comprehensive analysis describing how the goals of the OASIS asset changed over time between the planning stage, creation, and employment of the system.

Response: As previously explained in the testimony of Victor Gaglio in IMR proceedings before the TPUC, OASIS started as a compliance work management system. After the San Bruno incident, PHMSA issued a number of advisory bulletins and introduced several new concepts such as requiring records that are traceable, verifiable and complete and data integration for pipeline integrity risk management decisions among others. This required Piedmont to change the scope of the OASIS projects from developing a compliance work management system to developing tools and systems that would enable us to meet these new requirements.

18. Provide a comprehensive narrative detailing how Piedmont analyzes whether a project qualifies as an IMR investment based on FERC part 192, subparts O and P.

Response: Through its DIMP and TIMP programs, Piedmont identifies threats and risks on its pipeline system. Once the threats and risks are analyzed, projects are developed to mitigate those risks. These projects are proposed by the TIMP or DIMP teams or by the field personnel at the resource center. Piedmont also undertakes corrosion control and casing remediation projects that are created by the System Integrity team. Each project is required to go through an approval process.

To be approved, each project is required to provide details about the project location, what the project will entail, what issues it will address, and an estimate of project cost. Each project is reviewed by the engineering, system planning, and pipeline integrity teams to determine if it qualifies as an IMR project.

Projects are approved and qualified as IMR eligible based on the following criteria:

Corrosion control involves activities are designed to protect Piedmont's steel pipelines from deteriorating and leaking. This will include replacement of coating, installation of cathodic protection systems, installation of ground beds/rectifiers, and installation of alternating current mitigation systems.

Casing remediation activities involve removal of existing casing and possible replacement of carrier pipe due to electrolytic or metallic shorts, and/or inability to in-line inspect the carrier pipe.

Distribution Integrity Management activities include assessments and implementation of programs or measures to mitigate risk due to corrosion, natural forces, excavation damage, other outside force damage, substandard materials or joining, equipment failure, incorrect operations, and other concerns that could threaten the integrity of the system.

Transmission Integrity Management activities involve the retrofitting of existing transmission pipeline facilities in order to deploy, utilize, and recover in-line inspection devices for the purpose of examining the physical condition of Piedmont's natural gas transmission facilities from inside the pipe. Pipeline replacement activities for transmission pipelines will include replacements that are not feasible to retrofit for internal inspection and those which require replacement in order to allow in-line inspection.

19. If only certain aspects of a project, but not the entirety of the project, qualify as an IMR investment, should the total cost of the project be recovered through the Company's IMR? Provide all support to justify your reasoning.

Response: The method by which capital projects are set up in the asset accounting system ensures this does not happen. Construction projects set up under one of the following 4 project categories – TIMP, DIMP, Casing Remediation or Corrosion Control – are 100% associated with the Company's compliance with the requirements of US DOT regulations Part 192, Subparts O and P. Hence these are the construction project categories that get included in the IMR mechanism.

21. On April 9, 2018, during the Hearing on the merits in Docket No. 17-00138, in a series of questions from Chairman Jones, Piedmont witness Gaglio stated Piedmont would have been at a disadvantage competitively if it had not integrated the OASIS system and that other transmission pipeline companies in the industry were trying to integrate their legacy systems in a similar manner to Piedmont's OASIS system. Provide all information in the possession of Piedmont identifying the costs of assets similar to the Oasis asset owned by peer gas utilities (or divisions of gas utilities). Further provide all supporting evidence that Piedmont witness Gaglio used to make this assertion at the Hearing.

Response: Witness Gaglio's response to Chairman Jones was based on his active involvement with the American Gas Association, the Interstate Natural Gas Association of American and PHMSA and the years of discussion that took place around this subject matter. Piedmont does not possess specific information from peer companies that have similar projects. Through participation in best practice meetings, discussions and workshops with peer companies it became very clear that these peer companies were pursuing systems that would allow them to meet requirements surrounding asset traceability, verifiability and completeness and data integration expectations. Witness Gaglio's response to the Chairman was based on acquired knowledge and that any company that was not developing these systems would be at a competitive disadvantage by attempting to meet expectations through manual methods.

22. Given the magnitude of the existing IMR surcharge, does Piedmont believe it appropriate to place a cap on annual IMR increases to customers? If Piedmont does not believe such a cap is appropriate, provide a comprehensive explanation why incorporating a cap is not appropriate public policy and address the implications for future customer rate impacts due to a lack of a cap.

Response: Piedmont affirms its position that the IMR mechanism in its current form continues to be in the public interest. All costs being recovered through the IMR mechanism are associated with Piedmont's compliance with federal safety and integrity management rules and regulations - US DOT regulations Part 192, Subparts O and P.

In approving the IMR mechanism, the Authority (now Commission) stated on page 9 of its May 13, 2014 Order that the IMR mechanism was in the public interest because: 1) "it should eliminate the need for rate case filings in order to recover the costs associated with federal safety requirements"; 2) "it will also eliminate the recovery of the associated rate case legal expenses from ratepayers, thereby lessening the financial burden to ratepayers"; and 3) "the IMR mechanism will allow Piedmont to recover the funds necessary to repair and replace necessary plant in a timely manner which will result in a safe and reliable service to customers." Piedmont is not aware of any circumstances to this effect that have changed since that Authority ruling. Modifying the IMR mechanism so as to cap the annual rate increases under the IMR would undermine each of these three principal reasons cited by the Authority in its public interest determination for the IMR.

Along with each item, indicate whether the adjustment or modification will result in an increase or decrease to the revenue requirement, and provide an estimate of the magnitude of the increase/decrease.

Response: As explained in response to Item 1-22 of this data request, Piedmont’s current position is that the IMR mechanism in its current form continues to be in the public interest. Piedmont will duly consider and provide response to any proposed modifications that the Consumer Advocate may offer in its forthcoming filed testimony in this docket.

Re: Piedmont Natural Gas Company, Inc.
G-9, Company Folder

Dear Ms. Jarvis:

Enclosed is Piedmont Natural Gas' Call Center Operations Report for January 2018. The Company's service level for January 2018, as well as for the prior month, was below 80%. The main factor contributing to the low monthly service level was resource planning in light of the cold weather in late December through mid-January, which resulted in overall higher than forecasted call volumes and the early onset of "high bill" call volumes from customers. In light of this, the Company has been developing a more comprehensive resource planning strategy so as to meet or exceed the 80% service level on a daily, weekly and monthly basis independent of the actual weather experienced. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Jarvis:

Enclosed is the March 2018 Call Center Operations Report for Piedmont Natural Gas Company, Inc. ("Piedmont" or "Company"). The Company's service level for the month was below 80%. The main contributing factors to the low monthly service level were unanticipated and unusually high call volumes, employee attrition and certain technology challenges. The Company is conducting a thorough review of its operational model to ensure adequate resources are consistently available, and in particular on our busiest call days (Mondays and Fridays). Forthcoming technology infrastructure changes are also expected yield improvements to the service level. Please let me know if you have any questions.
